

BIG SANDY NEWS

Friday, March 4, 1921.

Huh!
"This is a funny world, ya gods!"
Exclaimed old Uncle Steven;
"You'll find when people are at odds They're trying to get even."
—Luke McLuke

COMING NEEDS THAT WILL HELP LOUISA

A retail lumber yard will be opened on the corner of Maple street near C. & O. freight station by Geo. R. Haynes and J. T. Justice, who are both experienced men in the lumber business.

We have now in transit more than 100,000 feet of assorted material. Arrangements are being made to construct sufficient sheds to take care of the material.

We also do contract work in general building. We will figure your plans and furnish in accordance and erect your house at an economy price. You will have no worry whatever. Just turn over your building proposition to us. Let us figure with you and give you exact cost of it and also assure you a satisfactory progress and quality of material and workmanship. We will interest any parties with prices wanting as much as one-half car of lumber.

ACCUSED VISIT MATEWAN.

Matewan, W. Va.—A curious procession passed through the sun-bathed streets of this little mining town Monday—19 men on trial for murder, 12 men who are to decide whether the 19 shall "hang by the neck until dead" or spend the rest of their lives in prison or go free.

Judge and counsel for both sides in the bullet-battle case came first, then Deputy Sheriffs and state police, armed to the teeth, newspaper men and in the van a multitude of townspeople.

For the people of Matewan it was the biggest day in history. The whole town had turned out to see Chief of Police Sid Hatfield and his 18 co-defendants go over the ground where they fought the gun fight with 13 Baldwin-Felts detectives in which 7 of the latter and 3 Matewanians were killed.

It was the first time these 19 men had been more than a few hundred yards from the dingy county jail at Williamson, the first time they had seen their homes since the trial began. It may have been the last for some of them.
